What's in a name?

Land owner suggests new name

By AMANDA WILSON
ANP Special Writer

"What's in a name?" was the question a Romulus land owner posed Tuesday to City Councilmembers in making a suggestion to change the name of Romulus.

In turn, councilmembers rejected the request, after defending the current name in a rage of heritage.

With no idea for a better title in mind, Mark Lewkowicz, 28, of Southfield and the owner of 50 acres of undeveloped Romulus land, suggested a name change was just the medicine Romulus needed to cure itself of a "bad image."

"Romulus has had a lot of bad publicity over the years and I think in order for the city to enhance the value of property and speed up development, a more sophisticated and romantic name is in order," Lewkowicz said. "Look at Auburn Hills, for example. Since its name changed from Pontiac Township, that city has shown tremendous growth as has Farmington Hills, formerly Farmington Township.

"I believe a change in Romulus might create better feelings and a greater sense of interest in the city."

Councilmembers did not agree.

"I have lived in the same house in this city for 48 years and I expect to die here as my beloved wife did," Councilman Jimmie C. Raspberry said. "I would sooner change my name than the name of this city."

Saying they respected Lewkowicz's right to an opinion, other councilmembers agreed. "There are problems in any community," Mayor Pro Tem Randolph Gear said. "But that's no reason to change identity. Whether or not we change the name, development of this city is imminent."

As far as Lewkowicz's assertion the name is not "romantic" enough, Gear reminded Lewkowicz the name of the city is rooted in an ancient fable.

Formed in 1835, two years before Michigan became the 26th state, Romulus was heavily infested with wolves. According to lore, twins who were raised by wolves, Romulus and Remus, are said to have been the namesake of the city.

"Nothing is quite as sweet as success, and I believe Romulus is a very successful city," Mayor Beverly McAnally said. "We have everything going for us and I see no need for a change of any kind."

Wellesley residents take next step in recall of board members

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Staff Writer

Wellesley Townhouses Cooperative residents achieved their goal May 24 and obtained a recall meeting and election day, both targeted for June.

Wayne County Circuit Court Judge William Cahalan ruled the Wellesley Board of Directors must set up an 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. balloting day for the recall election, according to Cynthia McMillin, newly appointed board member.

"A June 3 recall meeting has been set, and a June 10 election has been set," McMillin said.

Last month, residents picketed the cooperative office, asking for a recall of board members William Lincoln, Mary Danko, Mary Tyus and Marjorie Haynie.

Lincoln recently resigned as a board member stating in his resignation letter he hopes "all members of Wellesley could unite on the common course of improving the living conditions for all members of Wellesley."

"I am deeply saddened that my best efforts, and those of other board members, have not been sufficient to avoid a great rift among some of the board members of the cooperative,"

Directors.

On May 5, a membership meeting was staged. The original board consisting of the five members, according to McMillin, canceled the meeting. The Wellesley by-laws do not state the board has a right to cancel a meeting, McMillin said.

"We met anyway," McMillin said. "Our legal counsel informed us we could do this according to our by-laws. We went through the whole election procedure."

Board member Charles Ripple hand delivered the recently approved resolutions to the new president, Mary Danko. Lincoln was president until about April 30, when Danko and Lincoln decided to switch positions.

Wellesley former attorney Carl Becker resigned, alleging the former board members; Danko, Tyus, Haynie and Lincoln used his name for political reasons and twisted information to benefit the board.

"I cannot work for a Board of Directors which selectively discloses certain attorney-client matters, but not others for apparent political purposes and uses my name in the process," Becker said.

Party store lawsuit in court

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Staff Writer

A lawsuit between two Romulus party stores is in the pre-trial stage before Wayne County Circuit Court Judge James E. Mies.

Fakhri Yono, attorney for the owner of Golden Gallon party store, is continuing to question members of the Sirhan Corp. for an alleged breach of contract with Robert Ouro, owner of Golden Gallon.

The contract states Sirhan Corp. owner would not open a similar business after it was sold to the current owner. Since the sale of Golden Gallon, Sirhan Corp. has allegedly opened an ice cream store next to Golden Gallon and a beer-and-wine convenient store across the street carrying a number of the same items as the Golden Gallon, according to Ouro.

"They are not only selling ice cream, but they are also selling hot dogs, kielbasa, pop and other items which I carry, and they agreed not to carry the same items or open a similar business for five years as stated in the contract," Ouro said.

The terms of the purchase agreement are as follows:

- Seller agrees he will not engage in any business similar to or in competition with the business currently operated by seller as either as individual, partner, joint venturer, employee, agent or salesman for any person, firm or corporation or as an officer, director or employee of any corporation engaged in business.

- The terms will remain in force for a period of five years from and after the closing date and said covenant will extend for the area within a 2-mile radius.

A court date for continuing the questioning has not been set yet.

Ouro continues to pay rent to the Sirhan Corp.

Theater group looking for help

Mark and Julie Frentrup of Redford donated $250 last spring to the Adopt-A-Seat Donation Program of the Palace Theater Co. in Wayne.

The couple's money, along with $2,000 in other donations, will help buy 80 theater seats, part of a large restoration project the company initiated in 1989.

"I believe in community arts, and I am willing to donate hard-earned money to see the Palace Theater Co. get off the ground," Julie Frentrup said.

Because of Gov. John Engler's proposed budget cuts on Michigan arts grants and the economic recession, the company has shifted its target from public and private organizations to a greater number of individual residents, according to board member Robert Weibel.

"The cancellation of budget cuts would have made our theater work easier, but our goal is not to depend on the state," said Weibel, a member of the board of directors. "Our goal is to make it on our own. All of our projects have to be supported by the local community."

Weibel said in 1990 the Michigan Youth Corps Grant awarded the Palace Theater Co. $7,700 to pay high school dropouts for their interior and exterior work on the theater. He said this program cannot be repeated in 1991 because of the cuts.

Weibel said the company has canceled its 1991 application to the Michigan Equity Program of the Michigan State Department of Commerce for $100,000 because of lack of state aid.

"There has been a shift in our plans," Weibel said. "We had hoped half of our needed revenue would come through public grants, and the other half on our own. Now we must contend with this ourselves."

Private foundations tend to give money to corporations that are established, such as the Detroit Institute of Arts and the Detroit Symphony, Weibel said. This means the Palace Theater Co. is less likely to receive help from those foundations, since their doors are not yet open for business.

Weibel said as a result of the recession, the economic outlook for donations from residents in local communities is poor. "If times were booming and people had extra income, it would be a better time to give," he said.

The theater company consists of a nine-member Board of Directors, which plans to renovate a rare, vaudeville theater on Michigan Avenue and establish a performing arts and cultural center for western Wayne

Senator seeks clarification on bill

By THEODORE G. COUTLISH
ANP News Editor

State Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) last week called a proposed abortion-consent bill "unclear" and vowed to offer amendments after the bill is introduced to the state Senate Wednesday.

Stipulations of the bill, called Women's Right To Know by supporters, include a mandatory 24-hour cooling-off period for women seeking abortions and regulations that doctors must inform their patients of all risks involved during an abortion, show pictures of a developing fetus and detail the stress and mental anguish which may accompany an abortion.

"I have reservations about the language and serious questions about this bill," Faust said. "It puts the physician into a forced position that a person may not feel is best for his or her patient."

The bill is unlike the Parental Consent Law passed by the state Congress in March.

For one thing, it impacts pregnant women of all ages, instead of just minors. It also places more restrictions on the operating doctor to try and persuade women not to have abortions through scare tactics, critics contend.

Pam Landis, assistant director of the Michigan Abortion Rights League, blasted the bill, saying it's nothing more than "political propaganda" from the anti-abortion movement.

"The bill forces the doctor to give highly charged political messages to women during an emotional time," Landis said. "It forces them to be the mouthpieces for the anti-abortion movement. This limits the doctor's ability to give women sound medical advice by requiring them to do all these things."

"It's an attempt to terrorize and harass women and to discourage them from having abortions."

In its current form, the proposed bill is not likely to be approved by the state Senate, according to legislative insiders. They say the bill needs to be overhauled to allow physicians more flexibility in their operating procedures.

Moreover, the stipulations of showing fetus pictures and discussing mental anguish to abortion patients might also roadblock the bill from passage.

"It's obvious the reason for the legislation is to make women think twice about what they are about to do," Faust said. "There aren't any easy answers. I would like to make some amendments to allow physicians more options to help the person through what's going to happen during the operation."

Official says he complied with copyright

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Staff Writer

Matthew Raftary, director of Romulus assessment, recently addressed the concerns of residents Judy Frederick and Dorene Seibert on not being able to obtain various pages of the State Tax Commission cost manuals.

Frederick and Seibert approached councilmembers April 8 and alleged Raftary would not comply with the Freedom of Information Act by making copies of the manual.

Raftary, however, informed Mayor Beverly McAnally through a letter he was only following the rules in regards to copyright documentation.

"I informed (Seibert) the manual containing the rates were contained in the State Tax Commission cost manuals and that she was welcome to review these rates in my office at her convenience," Raftary said. "I also stated that in my opinion that the manual is a copyrighted document that is exempt from the Freedom of Information Act and, without express written consent, could not be duplicated."

On April 2, Seibert and Frederick approached Raftary to review the manual, which they were promptly given, according to Raftary.

"Under the Freedom of Information Act, it is stated that while making records available upon request that an official may take the necessary actions to secure the integrity of such documents," Raftary said. "In as much as this manual is the only such manual in the city and is of such great importance in performing the duties of this office, it is an item to which we take every precaution to safeguard."

Raftary pointed out on the document itself any part of the manual cannot be duplicated without the written consent of the State of Michigan, State Tax Commission or Marshall and Swift Co.

"Therefore, it is our opinion that, the duplication of this manual in any part would be a violation of federal copyright laws," Raftary said. "When I attempted to explain this to Mrs. Seibert she stated that this was a lie and that I only wished to harass her. As I assured her that it was not my intention to harass her in any way and again attempted to explain my position, I was again cut off and told that I was merely harassing her."

Raftary then made a call to the State Tax Commission, spoke with James Massa who informed Raftary if making copies of the manual would settle the situation, then the State Tax Commission would not object to furnishing copies.

"It was and still remains our opinion that the State Tax Commission Cost Manual is a copyrighted document and may not be reproduced without expressed written consent," Raftary said. "We have requested a formal opinion on this matter from the State Tax Commission as well as legal counsel for clarification and for future reference."

Students are honored for artistic talent

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Staff Writer

Two Romulus Senior High School students were honored May 10 and 11 at the Michigan Youth Arts Festival for their artistic talent.

Eben Smith and Steve Hayes were chosen to attend the Festival on the Western Michigan University campus in Kalamazoo.

The 29th Annual Festival is a culmination of a nine-month search for the finest artistic talent in Michigan high schools.

"No where else does this happen. We are especially proud of all the arts education teachers and administrators who make this unique festival happen."

— Frank Philip
arts specialist

Approximately 800 students were selected to attend the event where they shared their talents with peers and the public through exhibitions and performances.

Each student also has the opportunity to attend clinics, workshops and master classes in their own discipline. Included in the two-day event were dance, drama, instrumental and vocal music (both classical and jazz), visual arts and expository writing, according to Festival Director Robert Luscombe.

"The talent level of these students is extraordinary," Luscombe said. "It is a distinct honor to be selected for participation in this festival because it gives special attention to the importance of the arts in the lives of all, young and old alike."

Since 1963, the Michigan Youth Arts Festival has provided Michigan with a showcase for arts education which is unique in this nation, according to Luscombe. The festival began as a talent screening process for musicians for Michigan Week by Dr. Joseph Maddy, founder of the Interlochen Center for the Arts.

Michigan leads all states in the nation in showcasing gifted high school artists, according to Frank Philip, arts education specialist with the Michigan Department of Education.

"No where else does this happen," Philip said. "We are especially proud of all the arts education teachers and administrators who make this unique festival happen."

County, according to Weibel. The group hopes to provide the community with special events, concerts, comedy, exhibitions and meeting space.

"Arts improves the quality of life, and by not supporting it you are literally ignoring a large segment of the fine arts population," Frentrop said.

The company first opened as the Woodward Theater Co. on Aug. 27, 1927, and performed various vaudeville shows. In 1951, Walter Shafer bought the historical structure and converted it into a movie theater until 1951 when the stage area was closed and the lobby was taken over by a music store. In April 1985, a fire caused minor smoke damage to the theater. Two years later, a group of people interested in saving the historical building from the wrecking ball came together and formed a nonprofit corporation, the Palace Theater Co. They bought the building on Nov. 30, 1989.

The Wayne theater, the last of its type in the area, is a classic

Broadway design, according to board member and retired John Glenn High School drama teacher Lois Tobin. She said it has outstanding acoustics, seating for more than 800, and an intimate balcony overlooking a spacious stage.

Weibel said the next steps in the renovation process are the installations of restrooms and a heating and air conditioning system and repairing of entrances to comply with fire codes. Estimated costs for the entire restoration project is $760,000.

"Our architects in Ann Arbor have just finished drawings for the interior and exterior of the building," Weibel said. "We are on schedule. I would guess the theater will be open for performances in three years, maybe five years at the most."

Weibel said he expects the first shows will be performed "truck and bus" style, performed by a traveling group. Ultimately, Weibel said the company hopes to present six to eight musicals each year by its own professional resident acting company.

Festival parade lines up

Preparations for the 15th annual Belleville Area Strawberry Festival Parade are under way, and participants are being sought for the June 15 parade.

The annual parade is one of the highlights of the three-day festival, which draws several thousand visitors each year.

Entrants will line up in the Belleville High School parking lot at 9:30 a.m. and the 1 1/2 miles parade will begin promptly at 10 a.m., according to BASF Executive Director Donna Hall.

"The parade route commences at the parking lot, heads down West Columbia, turns on Main Street and passes the reviewing stand at the corner of Fourth and Main streets," Hall said. "The parade will then turn left on Roys, left on High Street and return to the high school."

According to Hall, the following rules must be observed:

- Each unit must provide its own banner or sign stating the name.
- Political advertising or distribution of political literature in the parade is prohibited.
- All floats will be inspected for possible safety hazards, and the committee reserves the right to prohibit unsafe entries.
- Parade participants are not allowed to throw and/or distribute materials from floats during the parade.
- Dancing and similar activities will not be allowed on moving floats.
- All animal units must provide a clean-up detail behind their units.

Entry forms are available at the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce office, 116 Fourth St., Belleville.

Enlistees recruited for high-tech Navy

Televised coverage of the Persian Gulf War has provided viewers with a powerful message about the high-tech aspects of the modern Navy.

"We've talked about our superior power and our technology, but this was the first opportunity the public has had to see the Navy in action, and to observe the high technology that is used," Navy Recruiter Carl Harden said. "Seeing the televised coverage of the war heightened interest in the military and brought out patriotism in people. It also prompted some people to want to become part of the winning team."

"It also showed the public that the liberty and freedom we value are here because we have the military to guard them. I think the recent events helped Americans to appreciate what they have and to also appreciate those who are serving to protect their rights."

While an interest in service to their country motivates recruits, the main reasons for enlistment cited by many recruits are the educational and training programs in the Navy.

Harden, a 1974 Belleville High School graduate, began his Navy career two years after graduation when he decided it offered him just what he wanted - an opportunity to travel, training for a food service career and college.

His travels have taken him to Jacksonville, Fla., where he trained under the guidance of a noted chef, and later to the Philippines, Korea, Japan, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Hawaii, Guam and Iceland.

However, four and one-half years ago Harden decided to return to his home state as a recruiter, and now serves at the military recruitment office at the Washington Plaza, Wayne Road and Glenwood, Westland.

"I enjoy the recruiting duties because I really believe in the programs," Harden said. "It's nice to be stationed near home, and I think it's an advantage in dealing with local people to be from the area. People know me and they trust me."

Harden performs a variety of duties as a recruiter, including performing public relations functions, developing awareness and creating interest in military service.

"Recruiters also serve as representatives of the Navy in the community. We make calls and visits to prospective recruits and attend school and community functions," he said. "I've also taught sea power classes to high school students."

'Upscale' fashion store to open

By BARB GOFFMAN
ANP Special Writer

Upscale shoppers who favor the products, sales help and ambiance of stores like Jacobson's will have a new place to spend their money beginning around August 1992.

Parisian Inc., an Alabama-based upscale fashion department store company, will open its newest store in the Laurel Park Place mall in Livonia.

Parisian will join Jacobson's as a co-anchor store inside the mall.

The retail outlet will provide about 350 new jobs for area residents, according to company officials.

Selling mostly clothes and cosmetics, Parisian will offer moderate to better price lines and quality, said Patty Bystrom, director of sales promotions.

The 20 Parisian stores now open throughout the Southeast and in Cincinnati, Ohio, sell brands such as Anne Klein 2, Ellen Tracy and Liz Claiborne for women and Polo and Boston Traders for men. The Livonia store probably will carry the same or similar brands, Bystrom said.

This will be the first venture into Michigan for Parisian.

Company officials said they are not afraid to expand, even in this time of recession.

"The mall is compatible with our upscale image. Our store and Jacobson's will compliment each other," Bystrom said.

Interviews for sales positions should begin in spring 1992. The company prefers people with sales experience but is willing to work with unexperienced personnel if they have pleasant dispositions and can offer the kind of service which Parisian is known for, Bystrom said.

Workers receive 42 hours of training before they are placed on the sales floor.

District playoffs to determine which team has 'right stuff'

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Who has the 'right stuff'? That's what the high school baseball fans and teams will learn Saturday as the stage is set for the 1991 district playoffs.

Four local teams survived the pre-district phase of the playoffs and have qualified to play for a Class A district championship. Westland John Glenn, Plymouth Salem, Plymouth Canton and Romulus will travel to Ann Arbor Huron to decide who is worthy of the district crown.

The winner will also earn a shot at the regional championship, scheduled to be decided a week from Saturday.

Glenn, ranked as high as second in the state this year, and Salem, also another top state choice, will meet at noon in the second game of the twin bill at Huron. In the opening game, Romulus faces an always-tough Plymouth Canton.

The district championship will be conducted at 3 p.m.

Glenn Coach Norm Hoenes says Huron is one of the toughest est districts in the state.

"In Salem and Canton, you have a couple of teams that have been traditionally among the finest in Michigan," Hoenes said. "Romulus also may not have the record to show it, but their program is improving each year."

The Westlanders went into the week of action boasting a 22-2 record.

3:00 p.m. District championship game

Glenn qualified to play for the district title by "mercy" Ann Arbor Pioneer 13-3. The Rockets pounded losing pitcher Lance Sparks for 15 hits and gave reliever Lawrence Scheffer the victory.

Pioneer pounced on Glenn starter John Ward early, scoring three runs in the second inning. The outburst forced the Rocket senior off the mound, but he got his margin of revenge at the plate.

Ward drilled two hits and drove in five runs in the rout. Teammates Gary Pierce, Eric Scheffer and Mike White each chipped in three hits while Andy Gagne came through with two singles in four trips.

Glenn erased a 3-0 second-inning deficit with four runs in the bottom of the inning, then erupted for five more runs in the fourth and put an end to the Pioneers' playoff hopes with a four-run surge in the fifth.

"This game had its moments," said Hoenes, who is finishing his 25th year as Rockets head coach. "It was only a 4-3 game going into the fourth. Obviously, I wasn't expecting to mercy them."

Monroe retains track crown

By TERRY LYNCH and
TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writers

Undefeated Monroe proved it was in a class all its own in the Wolverine 'A' Conference.

The Trojans retained their track and field crown with more than 20 points to spare in the men's division and then also earned the title in the women's division.

Monroe piled up 139 points to turn back its closest challenger, Belleville, which finished second in the men's division. The Tigers garnered 107 points. Following the two leaders were Fordson (85), Wyandotte (82), Wayne Memorial (36), Trenton (15), Southgate Anderson (18) and Lincoln Park (12).

However, despite the domination by Trenton in the overall standings, local athletes got their share of medals.

Al Bulford, the sterling junior from Wayne Memorial, earned a conference gold for his 20'3 1/2" leap in the long jump.

Bulford's teammate, James Grady, also continued to sparkle. He won the high (14.7) and the low (40.8) hurdles to become a double gold-medalist. Grady picked up a third gold when he combined with Bulford, Joe Dumont and Michael Hooks to win the 1,600-meter relay.

Dumont also won an individual event - he finished first in the 400-meter run (51.3).

Belleville runner Andre Edward continued to rule this corner of the state in the dashes. He won the conference gold with his 10.7 effort for the 100 meters. The Tiger senior also claimed the 200-meter dash after covering the distance in 21.79.

Erika Beetz clears a hurdle en route to a gold medal in the 300-meter lows.

Akua Hammons proved to be the best in the long jump.

Unbeaten Scheffer beats Canton 9-4, Glenn is champ

By DION PRATER
ANP Special Writer

The John Glenn Rockets and the Plymouth Canton Chiefs Tuesday played a baseball game where the stakes were higher than the temperature.

The two teams battled it out to see for the championship of the Western Lakes Division. Coming into the game, Plymouth Canton was the champion in the Western Division while the Rockets were the champions of the Lakes Division.

John Glenn won the game 9-4, which had been close until a five-run outburst by the Rockets in the sixth inning put the game out of reach. The Rockets won their fourth outright championship since they first joined the conference six years ago.

This was a big game for both teams and accordingly Glenn sophomore ace Aaron Scheffer pitched 5 2/3 innings for the victory, which improved his record to 6-0. He struck out three and walked two while giving up all four runs on six hits.

His counterpart for the Chiefs was Scott Kennedy, who gave up nine runs on nine hits in defeat. Kennedy was wild, walking seven and striking out four.

Again John Glenn struck early. Andy Gagne started the rally with a one-out walk. Kennedy then walked Lawrence Scheffer to put runners at first and second with only one out. It appeared Kennedy might get out of the inning as he got the next batter to pop out. However, John Ward stepped up to the plate and delivered for the Rockets with a double to score both runners.

The Chiefs tied up the score in the bottom of the first with the help of some bad judgment on the Glenn infielders. Mike Stafford ended up at third on a play that was supposed to be routine. The shortstop threw over the first baseman's head. Then the catcher, who was backing up the play, threw the ball into the outfield while trying to get Stafford at second.

Todd Tniewski doubled him home to cut the Rocket lead in half. Tniewski then scored on an error and the game was tied at the end of one inning.

In the second, Glenn again rallied to take the lead. Ken Tennant walked to lead off, and was balked to second by Kennedy. Again it seemed harmless for Kennedy, as he retired the next two batters. Gary Pierce singled to put runners at first and third. Greg Tammes singled to bring home Tennant and Glenn led again 3-2. Andy Gagne kept the rally going with another single to score Pierce and the Rockets led by two again.

The teams were held scoreless until the Rockets took advantage of costly Chief gifts. A one-out walk to Pierce started the end for Canton. He stole second and Gagne singled to continue his good day as he went 2-for-2 with an RBI and he scored twice. Scheffer doubled to bring home both runners. He was followed by walks to Ward and Scheffer. Tennant singled to bring home Scheffer. John Ward then scored on a passed ball and Tayo Farley finished the Glenn scoring with a single to bring home Scheffer and extend the lead 9-2.

Canton did not go down easy against the sophomore ace, though. The Chiefs scored two runs on more sloppy defense by the Rockets.

Mark Henry singled, and was followed by Mike Wougamon's single. On the play, the outfielder tried to throw out Henry when he strayed too far from the base at third. He overthrew the third baseman and Henry scored. Wougamon, who took second on the error, scored on Tniewski's single to pull the Chiefs within four.

However, Glenn removed Aaron Scheffer only to be relieved by his older brother, Lawrence. He quickly struck out the next batter. In the seventh, he retired the side in order to put away the Chiefs and the celebration was on.

Belleville tops Trenton to win the Wolverine 'A' crown

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Durable Dawn Rochowiak twirled a three-hitter en route to a lopsided 8-1 Belleville victory over Trenton to clinch the 1991 Wolverine 'A' Conference softball crown.

It was the Tigers' sixth league championship and third in the WAC since 1984, according to elated Belleville Coach Peggy Curtis.

"You're always happy to win a championship," Curtis said. "It was one of our goals. However, the season isn't over. There's still the playoffs to consider, and that's when the pressure is on."

Rochowiak, who boosted her personal record to 15-5 on the year, has been near perfect this year. She notched five strikeouts and walked one.

Belleville jumped on losing pitcher Linda Bebyak early. The Tigers came up with two runs in the first inning, added one more in the second and made it a 6-0 game after four innings.

Kelly Rochon led the assault on three Trenton hurlers. She collected two hits, a double and triple and drove in one run. Jenny Adkins and Christy Adkins - no relation - each accounted for two hits.

Earlier in the week, Rochowiak blanked Ann Arbor Pioneer 2-0 in the qualifying round of the Class A district playoffs. The victory is the Tigers' ticket to the district tournament Saturday at Ann Arbor Huron.

Belleville will play host Huron at 11 a.m. in the opening round, while Plymouth Canton will face the fourth, yet undetermined, qualifier at 1 p.m. The championship will be decided at 3 p.m.

Rochowiak and Pioneer hurler Lisa Lamberson staged a pitching duel to the end. Lamberson spoiled Rochowiak's bid for a no-hitter as the Pioneer ace laced two singles - all of Pioneers' output from the plate.

The Tiger pitcher notched seven strikeouts and walked one for the afternoon.

Belleville scored in the opening inning, thanks to a leadoff double by Rochon, who advanced to third with Tanya Kjellin's sacrifice. Keshia Wilson then doubled Rochon home.

The Tigers got an insurance run in the fifth on an error that put Kjellin aboard, a wild pitch and a throwing error.

Belleville will carry a 22-7 record into the playoffs Saturday.

'Heart breaker' ends New Boston season

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

New Boston Huron blew a three-run, seventh-inning lead against Southgate Aquinas and dropped a 5-4 extra-inning decision in the qualifying round of the Class B district playoffs.

The loss brought the curtains down on the 1991 season for the Chiefs and Coach Bill Spiecker. Ironically, the loss came during a period when Huron had been playing near flawless baseball.

"Our defense and our pitching had been great," Spiecker said. "We were only an out away from wrapping up this victory when (Aquinas) put three unearned runs on the board to tie it up."

Aquinas then scored the tiebreaker in the ninth.

Matt Hamilton was tagged with the loss in relief of starter Dave Delano. Delano had Aquinas up against the ropes and pitched scoreless ball for four innings before giving up his first run in the bottom of the fifth.

Ahead 4-3 in the seventh, Huron saw its chances of victory dissipate as Aquinas, without hitting the ball out of the infield, scored three valuable runs. They cashed in on five of seven Huron errors in that decisive inning to even the score.

Matt Hamilton, an All-area selection a year ago, stroked a single and double and chased home two runs for the losers. He finished the campaign with a .361 batting average. Teammate Mike Herrmann chipped in a pair of singles.

The loss left the Chiefs with a 11-11 overall record, which was an improvement over last year when they finished 5-9 in the conference.

Huron looked good in its tune-up for Southgate as the Chiefs split with rivals Grosse Ile earlier in the week. The Islanders carved out a 9-7 victory but Huron got its revenge 10-6.

Greg Richardson, who worked the first 3 2/3 innings, was the losing pitcher. Hamilton finished up.

The Chiefs wasted an excellent effort from Delano, who latched on to three hits — a double and two singles. He also had three RBIs. Jason Marteney laced two hits for the losers.

In the second game, Jason Trombly, with help from Hamilton, subdued the Islanders 10-6. Trombly went 6 2/3 innings before giving way to Hamilton, who helped the Chiefs' cause with a double and single.

Huron, trailing 4-3 going into the bottom of the sixth, exploded for six runs to grab a 10-4 lead, then hung on as Grosse Ile battled back for two runs in its seventh.

Delano, Marteney and Erik Eastridge each connected for two hits.

Spiecker said he felt his team had improved during the year. "Despite that frustrating loss to Aquinas, I felt we had a good season," Spiecker said. "We won 11 ballgames and our defense and pitching improved overall."

Inkster falls flat

Inkster Coach Jerome Orr had little to say after team his lost to unheralded Detroit Renaissance in the qualifying round of the Class B baseball playoffs staged on the Detroit high school diamond.

The 7-1 Inkster defeat ended the season on a low note for the Vikings, who found their way into the winning column only twice in 16 starts during the 1991 campaign.

"It's been a very frustrating year for us," said Orr, who wrapped up his third season as head coach. "We just didn't have any consistency out there. The less said about it, the better."

Charlie Adams digested the season-ending loss. The game was called in the fourth inning by the officials. Orr had no explanation for the abbreviated playoff game.
